

national artist. The theater has its own in house lights, sound, and television production headed by Jeff Jensen.

The show has been airing on RFD, for about a year with excellent response by our audience. It is amazing to pick up the telephone and hearing people from Florida and California and anywhere and everywhere in the country tell you they enjoy what your doing.

Our philosophy at Midwest Country is very simple, "We love Old Country and Bluegrass music. We believe this music played a very important and positive part in the influence on our culture. And it's something America has to be proud of. Even though Country Music today is enjoyed in nations around the world it was born and flourished in America."

We know that change must come but, it's important for any people to not let go or lose something that helped to influence them for good. I believe that the Grand Ole Opry and its many artists such as Johnny Cash, Hank Williams, Lefty Frizzell, Jean Shepard and a host of others; and the song writers and publishers have given something very good to our culture and our nation and the world. It would be a shame if it were to be lost forever.

In an age when traditional country music is fading in the entertainment arena. Midwest Country allows so many excellent and accomplished entertainers a venue where they can be seen and heard.

Midwest Country has in its video library about 400, country artist that have appeared at Midwest Country over the years. Most of them are not household names, but many have unbelievable talent. We will always be grateful for the honor and privilege afforded us, from the kind people at RFD TV for airing our TV show. We would like to express our gratitude for so many artists and entertainers for their spirit of cooperation; and also to the viewers and the multitude of e-mails, phone calls, and letters. From all of us at Midwest Country thank you.
